

Andy Marion, Albuquerque, New Mexico

Navajo Jewelry

Andy Marion has been a silversmith since the age of nine and won his first award when he was a teenager. He was taught by his father who is also a silversmith. Andy currently does both traditional and contemporary designs, focusing mostly on one-of-a-kind pieces. Andy cites working on bolo ties commissioned by Charlie Daniels and Kevin Costner as two of his greatest experiences.

Andy's awards include 1st place for Jewelry at the Heard Museum, 1st place for Jewelry at the Eight Northern Artist Craft Show, and Best of Show for Jewelry at the Sky Ute Artist Invitational. In 2013 Andy won 1st place in Contemporary Arts at the Tesoro Indian Market.
