

Gilmore Scott, Montezuma Creek, Utah

Diné (Navajo) Nation

Watercolor, Acrylics and Color pencil

Gilmore Scott studied art at the College of Eastern Utah and Utah State University. His colors are strong and bold. Gilmore's images and subjects are interpretations of how he views his culture. His chosen subjects are from his Diné heritage. Images like the high desert southwest landscapes, traditional basket and the traditional "Hogan" are his inspirations. Gilmore also incorporates geometric designs that Diné rug weavers use.

His work has been shown and has won many awards. His recent shows include the Totah Indian Art Festival, Farmington, NM; 23rd Annual Native American Arts Festival (1st place), Pinetop Lakeside, AZ; Mesa Verde Indian Art Market (1st place), Mesa Verde, Colorado; and Edge of the Cedars Museum Indian Art Market (Best of Show & 2nd place), Blanding, Utah. Last year Gilmore won 3rd Place in Easel Art at Tesoro's Market.
